

MoU Between IADC And UNESCO-IHE

An official Memorandum of Understanding between the International Association of Dredging Companies (IADC) and UNESCO-IHE, has formalised the cooperation between the organisations and given a broader perspective for the future. The Memorandum of Understanding was signed by IADC President Peter de Ridder on behalf of the IADC and Rector/ Prof. A. Szöllösi-Nagy, PhD on behalf of UNESCO-IHE at an official ceremony in Delft, The Netherlands.

IADC and UNESCO-IHE will continue to work together on projects such as short courses on 'Coastal Engineering and Port Development' (CEPD) and the IADC's week-long course on dredging and reclamation which has been presented annually at the UNESCO-IHE Delft campus for two decades.

In general, the IADC will offer the more than 14,500 UNESCO-IHE alumni students and alumni a wealth of technical knowledge through its publications. The IADC will also encourage its members to support research projects of UNESCO-IHE students. On the other hand, these UNESCO-IHE alumni from developing countries and countries in transition in Africa, Asia and Latin America can be of importance to the IADC as potential clients and employees.

The next IADC Seminar on Dredging and Reclamation will be held at UNESCO-IHE, from 24 June to 28 June 2013.

Image: IADC President Peter de Ridder and Rector/Prof. A. Szöllösi-Nagy, UNESCO-IHE sign a treaty of cooperation, formalising their relationship at an official ceremony in Delft, The Netherlands.