

EIVA Strengthens Foothold in Brazil

The Brazilian company MACSEA is now part of EIVA's international representative network of offshore specialists. The underwater technology expert MACSEA has signed a contract with Danish EIVA, thereby including both software and hardware solutions from the subsea engineering company in the MACSEA product portfolio.

MACSEA will be representative for both software and hardware technologies from EIVA in the country, which accounts for a large proportion of the global offshore capital expenditures.

MACSEA is headquartered in Macaé, Rio de Janeiro, and specialises in providing technical services and products for the offshore oil and gas, energy and oceanography industries.

The MACSEA team consist of underwater technology specialists with 15 years of experience on average in sales and service of underwater technology. This allows the company to offer customers a skilful technical customer support staff for quality and maintenance and repair services on electrical and electronic subsea equipment.
