

IMCA Appoints Additional Technical Adviser

The former Director of Education and Training at The Nautical Institute, Ian Giddings, has been recruited as a Technical Adviser, joining an increasingly busy technical team at the International Marine Contractors Association (IMCA).

Mr. Giddings took up his appointment at the beginning of December. Ian has recent experience at the Nautical Institute and he will be working primarily to support the work of our Marine Division alongside our other Technical Advisers, who assist Jane Bugler, our Technical Director in the delivery of the Association's work programme.