New Regional Hydrographic Commission for the Arctic

The new Regional Hydrographic Commission for the Arctic was established last week in Canada. The Arctic Regional Hydrographic Commission (ARHC) is an initiative of five Arctic coastal states, Canada, Denmark, Norway, the Russian Federation and the United States.

The new Regional Hydrographic Commission for the Arctic was established last week in Canada. The Arctic Regional Hydrographic Commission (ARHC) is an initiative of five Arctic coastal states, Canada, Denmark, Norway, the Russian Federation and the United States. The Dominion Hydrographer of Canada, Dr. Savithri Narayanan will be chairing the Commission, with Denmark as the Vice Chair.

The new Commission is aimed toward exchange knowledge and information in order facilitate environmentally responsible exploration of the Arctic water and the development of the maritime infrastructure required for safe navigation and protection of the marine environment of the Arctic. The ARHC will be working closely together with other intergovernmental organizations and the international hydrographic and maritime transport community.

https://www.hydro-international.com/content/news/new-regional-hydrographic-commission-for-the-arctic