

New Wave Media Acquires Marine Technology Reporter

New Wave Media has acquired Marine Technology Reporter (MTR), a twelve year old quarterly publication dedicated to reporting on the marine, environmental and engineering business from Marine Marketing Services of Hingham, Massachusetts. Marine Technology Reporter, and its twice monthly electronic, sister-publication, www.mtronline.net, is dedicated to keeping its global audience of readers abreast of information on the worldwide ocean industry through feature articles, company and products news, and a comprehensive events calendar.

The new Marine Technology Reporter “a four-color magazine printed on a coated paper stock” is set to debut this summer. It will be edited for an international audience of executives, scientists, engineering and technical personnel in industry, government, and educational institutions that are actively employed and engaged in undersea defense, oceanography, the marine sciences, offshore drilling, underwater exploration and survey, diving and construction.

<https://www.hydro-international.com/content/news/new-wave-media-acquires-marine-technology-reporter>
